

In regard to this proceeding invoked by petition of the Consumer Banking Association and placed before the Federal Communications Commission:

I am vigorously opposed to any entity attempting to weaken Indiana's Telephone Privacy by imposing the federal "established business relationship" exemption on consumers. It has been such a blessing to not have my residential phone invaded by unwanted telephone calls from my phone company, bank, etc. I want to make my voice known, in response to the notice I received from the Attorney General. We as citizens are bombarded enough each day by unwanted email and postal junk mail. For those who wish to receive contacts from companies, I say that is fine and good. But for those of us who vehemently despise companies calling our homes at all hours of the day, without our consent, I say no to this petition. I stand behind the Attorney General of Indiana in upholding our privacy. I personally ask that the FCC deny this petition put forth by the CBA.
Thank you.
